Josef Eidenberger (1899-1991) began his artistic career as a landscape painter, showing great perception for the mood of the local countryside. In 1923 he enrolled in the famed Graphic Academy of art in Vienna, and studied under Professor Alfred Cossman. Starting with copper engraving, Eidenberger soon turned to etching as a medium. His specialized studies and love for subtle color led him to the complicated process of color etching. Greatly influenced by the Austrian etcher Luigi Kasimir, Eidenberger improved his technique from plate to plate. His eye for detail and meticulous execution of each plate has brought him many commissions from city officials and members of the business communities throughout Europe, especially in Austria and Germany. In December of 1977, the Austrian government bestowed upon Eidenberger the honorary title of Professor of the Arts in appreciation for his contribution to the advancement of fine arts. The artist died in Austria in 1991.

288	Edouard Jules Chimot (1880 - 1959) Mixed Media Pencil And Pastel On Paper, Female Figure - {shipping arranged by auction house or free local pick up} Mixed Media Pencil And Pastel / Paper, (Small Foxing Spots) Sight 14" X 10 1/2" Framed And Matted 24" X 20 1/4". Edouard Chimot was a painter and print-maker, influenced by the Symbolists, whose aesthetic he carried forward into the age of Art Deco. Edouard Chimot work has a strong erotic component. His heyday was the 1920s, when his own art was at its most powerful, and as Artistic Director of the fine press Les Editions d-Art Devambez, Chimot worked closely with artists such as Pierre Brissaud, Edgar Chahine, Tsuguharu Foujita, and Almerly Lobel-Riche. Born in Lille, Édouard Chimot studied under Levert and Mossa at the Ecole des Arts Decoratifs in Nice, and under Pharaon de Winter at the Ecole des Beaux-Arts, Lille. He appears to have launched his fine art career rather late, first exhibiting in 1912 and then further delayed by WWI. As in 1903 Chimot was entrusted with the design of the Belle Epoque mansion the Villa Lysis in Capri, for the dissolute Baron Jacques d Adelsward-Fersen, it seems likely that he trained first as an architect.

312	Orig. Harry Glaubach Katz's Deli Folk Art Wall Hanging - {shipping arranged by auction house or free local pick up} - 37" wide. Harry Glaubach (1925-2017) was a one-of-a-kind folk artist, New York through and through. Growing up as a child of the Depression, Harry Glaubach began carving the houses and buildings of his Lower East Side neighborhood. The second of four children of a German immigrant cabinetmaker, Harry's family was too poor to afford store-bought toys, so he fashioned his own out of wood. He continued this hobby, turning it into a 40+ year career as a self-taught artist. Harry's world-famous wood sculptures focus on New York City icons like Katz's Deli, Yankee Stadium, Ebbets Field, Abbott & Costello, Marilyn Monroe, the Marx Brothers, Coney Island, and most frequently, the Lower East Side. The work is nostalgic, harking always to a more simple past. "Nobody was jealous of anyone else because no one had nothing," Harry says. "Life was slower then, and you enjoyed it. Even funerals weren't in the rush they are today." The past, he believed, was beautiful.

317	Italo Botti / George Barrell Impressionist Nude Painting - {shipping arranged by auction house or free local pick up} - canvas painting in 25"x37.5" frame. Italo George Botti (1923 - 2003) was active/lived in New York, Illinois, and Florida. Italo Botti is known for Impressionist landscape with figures, religion, stained glass, mosaics, and sculpture. During an artistic career that spanned more than half a century, Italo George Botti created thousands of works, often painting two canvases at a time and running from one to the other as the ideas came. "Yellow, blue, green, his paintings always depicted joy and happiness," said his brother, former DuPage County Board Chairman Aldo Botti. "If ever a man could paint a breeze, the aroma of flowers and the sound of music, it was him. An ecclesiastical artist, Mr. Botti designed and restored religious scenes for hundreds of churches, hospitals, government buildings and museums. Dozens of Chicago parishes hold works created or reconstructed by Botti, said Michael Smoucha, one of about 40 artists Mr. Botti employed at the Evanston-based Botti Studio of Architectural Arts Inc. Mr. Botti ran studios under the same name in San Diego and Sarasota. Italo Botti also painted under the name George Barrel. The Barrel signature was used on canvases sold through Arts International's/ Circle Fine Arts' various galleries. Some signatures were painted on the canvas and some were scratched into the canvases. Botti changed the signature on his canvases to Barrel-Botti and then to Italo Botti while still painting for Arts International/ Circle Fine Art. Italo George Botti was 80 when he died Wednesday, April 23, 2003 during heart surgery in Sarasota Memorial Hospital, Sarasota, Fla.

He feels a certain empathy with this bush canine; the fact that it's rarely represented in human expression, along with the fact that it doesn't fit in with other wildlife. Despite this, he feels that coyotes "celebrate life." They're undaunted by life's speed bumps and endure anyway. Over the years, his coyote art has evolved to account for his own life experiences, both glorious and tragic.

374	Large Oil on Canvas After Guido Reni, Aurora 1600's Painting - Local Pick Up Only - The period known as the Baroque (the 1600s) produced many new and innovative pictorial modes of expression and none more so than the painted ceiling. One of the most beautiful and elegant of these ceilings is Guido Reni's Aurora, painted in 1614 for the Roman Cardinal Scipione Borghese for the ceiling of his small summer house known as the Casino dell'Aurora. This casino (not the gambling sort) was part of the Cardinal's larger palace residence located on the Quirinal Hill in Rome. The fresco represents Aurora, goddess of the dawn, bringing forth a new day as she leads the way for Apollo, god of light (among many other things), who follows behind in his golden quadriga (a four-horse chariot). That Aurora is bringing the dawn is evident through the change in the sky we see between the two gods: a darkish silvery gray before Aurora that turns into a bright, golden light filled sky before Apollo. In 30.25"x63" frame (small repair and tear, photographed)

651	Barely Used Yuneec Typhoon H Hexacopter With GCO3 4K Camera And Nylon Back Pack - {shipping arranged by auction house or free local pick up} This Has 2 Batteries And Charger. What You See In The Photos Is What You Get. Sold as is no warranty expressed or implied. The Typhoon H Hexacopter with GCO3 4K Camera is the most advanced aerial photography and videography platform available in such a compact size. Driven by customer demand for a design that goes beyond the limitations of a traditional quadcopter, Typhoon H delivers capabilities previously only found in high-end professional offerings, but at a consumer price. Typhoon H offers flight durations of up to 25 minutes while filming with the CGO3 4K UHD camera. The Android powered ST16 Ground Station features a 7-inch touchscreen that displays live footage of your flight in HD 720p resolution and enables a wide variety of autonomous flight modes. This version of the hexacopter features gimbal-stabilized, 4K camera with 12MP stills mode, making it a perfect choice for aerial imaging of all types. In addition to a GPS-based navigation system, which enables familiar features such as automatic return to home and orientation control, there is a front-facing ultrasonic sensor. This drone helps detect large obstacles and avoid collisions. The hexa-rotor design offers better flight stability and more precise control. The landing gear retracts in-flight, offering an unobstructed 360 degrees of shooting. Carbon fiber parts and folding motor arms reduce the Typhoon H weight.
